Spiritual Joy Of Bach's Music Interpreted Beautifully

By FRITZ T. WURZMANN

On July 28, 1750, Johann Sebastian Bach's earthly life came to an end. Two hundred years later all the music lovers in the world remember and celebrate this date in commemoration of the world's greatest composer by playing his works and giving millions of grateful listeners emotional uplift and spiritual joy that only Bach's music can provide. We in Carmel are proud to have created one of the places where this great event is celebrated.

Thanks to the untiring and devoted efforts of Dene Denny and Hazel Watrous who made the Carmel Bach Festival of 1935 an annual event, which they have since managed every year - only interrupted during the last war - its ever increasing growth from modest beginnings has surpassed all expectations, and has put Carmel on the map as one of the foremost musical centers in California.

This year is a fitting climax of devoted work of the numerous participants, who as soloists, musicians of the orchestra and members of the chorus are artists in their own rank, and are inspired by our conductor, the great Gastone Usigli. His ardent desire to perfect each performance, his religious feeling for Bach's compositions, his inspiring coaching has created impressions in us this year which will be unforgettable during our life time.

It should be pointed out that we who have been raised in the German tradition of interpreting Bach - probably forgetting that there was an interruption in playing Bach's music from the time of his death until Mendelsohn revived Bach's St. Matthew Passion in 1829 and developed a renaissance of Bach's music - gained a new viewpoint from Usigli's dramatic and passionate conception which made some of the music heard during the first days fantastically lively and vital (I think of some parts of the B minor Mass and Hokanson's rendition of the D minor concerto for piano.)

The people of Carmel took a real interest at the opening of the Festival by coming to the Sunset School to listen to the heralding trombones, while the many hundred of subscribers who were fortunate to get tickets for the rather limited seating capacity of the auditorium milled outside the entrance trying gradually to enter the hall. Bach's B minor Mass - in former years played and sung as the ending climax after a full week of music - initiated this year's Festival. Many familiar faces in the chorus indicated years of devoted singing and constant participation during the early months of each year. How beautifully did Usigli weld together chorus and orchestra with the five marvellous soloists: Katherine Hilgenberg, Phyllis Moffet, our local Dan Lenoir Hosack, Russel Horton and Ralph Isbell. Never has the orchestra been more perfect by unifying the participants who came from the North and the South of the state, even from as far as Houston in Texas. How dramatically did Usigli build up the contrasting parts of the Mass, as for instance the slow touching Quartet "Crucifixus" against the following breathtaking Chorus "Et Resurrexit."

It is not possible for the reviewer to give in detail the impressions of the concentrated week of Bach's music; but the gentle reader is well familiar with the program which was printed last week in the excellent edition of the SPECTATOR.

The outstanding event of Monday night's performance was the Concerto D minor for Piano and Orchestra, which brought Randolph Hokanson a well deserved and tremendous applause. Never have I heard it played so brilliantly and at the same time with such emotional and dramatic power.

The evening started with the Overture in B minor in which Floyd Stancliff, the flutist, presented himself as an artist of first rank. His flute sang melodically and pleadingly with the orchestra and

SPREADING the NEWS...

By Howard Statham

RECENTLY I RELATED here my wife's comment on reading a news item about Dr. Otto Barkan. "Oh, I know him," she said. He's the doctor my mother used to go to to get her eyes popped." Well, the other day she came across another article about another doctor, and, as usual, she had quite a picturesque comment to make. The doctor in this instance was Dr. John Cline, of San Francisco, who recently was elected president of the American Medical Association. "Oh, I know him," said my wife. "He's the man who cut my throat when I was a kid."

MR. ANDRE J. M. LAURENT, the Dolores Street gentleman with the Quimper Laces, insists that no matter what anyone may think to the contrary, Quimper Laces are French and nothing but French--in spite of the lady who tried one of the French pastries and remarked: "Why, they're just like some Chinese cookies I had the other day, except for the color. Of course," she went on to explain, "they're not the same thickness and the taste is different."

THE KIND OF MISTAKE that I like above all others has cropped up in a Monterey Peninsula publication. It's the kind of mistake that doesn't take any deep pondering to discover why it happened; it can be blamed on either (1) a faulty telephone connection, if such a thing exists in 1950, or (2) the faulty diction of one of the persons who was using the phone. The announcement concerned the play, "The Glass Menagerie," and the authorship of said play was attributed to one Kenneth C. Williams. This is the same Kenneth C. Williams who has made quite a name for himself with this particular play and one called "A Streetcar named Desire" and another entitled "Summer and Smoke," and who is known in other parts of the country as Tennessee Williams.

MARGARET LIAL THOROUGHLY ENJOYED, I think, the Tam O'Shantered and corduroy-jacketed pig, hawg or what-have-you that appeared next to her ad for Lial's Music Shop in last week's SPECTATOR. But the "wonderful combination" mentioned in the ad referred only to Bach and Magnavox phonographs, and didn't include the Spotted Poland China in any way, shape or form. She is happy, too, that through her, and through the medium of the printed page, a member of the lowly swine family has been brought permanently close to one of the great and good things in life--Johann Sebastian Bach.

THOSE OF YOU who think that the world situation is not all it could be at the moment will no doubt be cheered by the fact that you share your views on the gravity of things in general with a great many others. For instance, shortly after the outbreak of the United Nations Police Action that is going on in Korea, a group of dancing instructors in Southern California broke out with a new one they've labeled the "Korean Hop." It sounds real groovey, and I'm wondering how many boxes of Wheaties they'll have to eat to work up enough energy to create an appropriate hop when and if the atom bombs start flying.

BACK IN THE DAYS when my grandfather was a barber and Mr. Wick Parsons (the same Mr. Parsons you'll find at Parsons of Carmel) had a little more hair, they used to see each other quite regularly. Now I'm the one who sees Mr. Parsons. When I stopped in earlier this week, the Parsons collection of silver, antiques, porcelain, furniture, etc., wasn't the only attraction in the place. There was a little competition from Loyola and Ed Fourtane, who make (or maybe I should say "create") jewelry--the likes of which I, and you too, perhaps, have never seen before. And that's why my Uncle Frank and Aunt Daisy had better lock up their rock collection the Hundreds of the finest horses in the west and as many skillful riders will gather at spacious Bolado Park Rodeo grounds, eight miles south of Hollister, July 28, 29 and 30 for the 17th Annual San Benito County Saddle Horse Show and Rodeo.

This year's show will initiate a modern $259,000 grand stand and present a unique display of more than 200 San Benito County livestock brands imprinted in cement blocks at the entrance to the new structure. Some of the brands are as old as California itself and are well known to cattlemen throughout the state.

More than $5,000 in cash awards will be offered contestants and a grand ball the night of July 29 in a spacious pavilion on the rodeo grounds are interesting features of this 3-day event.

Stevens Tops In "The Swan"

By BILL MARTIN

The brilliance of the Wharf Players' production of Molnar's "The Swan" fluctuated somewhat like a lighting system in an electrical storm, but the dim spots were few and brief, and they were caused mainly by forgotten lines and poor ad libbing. Here in the lead paragraph is where Frederick Stevens' name shall be mentioned, because his portrayal of Prince Albert was subtle, humorous and extremely professional.

Not content to break precedent by seeing the second night's performance rather than the opening show, this reviewer herewith launches his heaviest adverse criticism at the audience last Friday night - not at the cast. Seated next to me in the front row, a prominent Carmelite and his wife talked throughout the play in rather gruff conversational tones. Small wonder that the prompting from the wings came out so loud and clear; a wonder that the actors and actresses were able to hear one another, not to mention a backstage whisper.

If these two persons know that I refer to them, I say: "Splendid!"

Back to the play. Which was thoroughly enjoyable and quite a switch from the Wharf Players' previous productions.

Molnar's wordy dialogue was handled for the most part with the utmost competence and the audience saw some excellent performances by Said Riza, Barbara Norberg and Hildreth Hare. David Eldridge, as Father Hyacinth, was so good that it's a wonder that he hasn't appeared in more productions on the peninsula. Victor Brune, playing the faithful Caesar, showed his well-known flair for deadpan humour, getting the biggest share of laughs. Bill Fort and Dee Olivetti also provided comic relief, not just with words, but with lowered eyes or an occasional lifted eyebrow.

In retrospect, the play was dominated by the aforementioned Mr. Stevens and by Dorothy Goudge, who played Mr. Steven's doting mother, the Princess Maria Dominica. A latecomer to the show, Miss Goudge fluttered through an engaging scene with Hildreth Hare.

The grace of Barbara Norberg and the genteel suavity of Said Riza made the love scenes a pleasure to watch and really quite fascinating. In fact, much credit must go to Director Dan Totheroh for the casting. It would be difficult to imagine that the players he chose for the production could have been picked with more discernment.

As the youngsters in the play, Warren Masten and Allen Knight, Jr., were very good indeed. It's always a pleasure to watch juveniles onstage who don't make the hair rise on the back of your neck, not that this comment is intended as a left-handed compliment, because the boys have real talent and composure.

With a half a dozen performances completed, the cast should have its difficult dialogue well in hand, but, if not, I suggest someone apply a semi-quietus to the prompting.

A lady called this publication on the morning following opening night. She said the play was like champagne, and she was right. It sparkled, all right.

FORM GYMNASIUM CLASS FOR WOMEN OF THE PENINSULA

A gymnasium class for women has been organized for the Summer in the Monterey High School gymnasium. The leader of the group is Miss Ann Hodgson, of Carmel, who received her degree in physical education from the San Jose State Teachers' College, having previously attended the Russell Sage College, New York, and Hartnell College, Salinas.

The principal purpose of the class will be physical conditioning and figure control, the developing of flexibility, strength and coordination, good posture, and the ability to relax.

The club was organized at the request of Navy wives, but the class is open to all women who feel the need of such physical training. Meetings are at 8 p.m. each Tuesday in the Monterey High School gymnasium.

Carmel Bach Festival

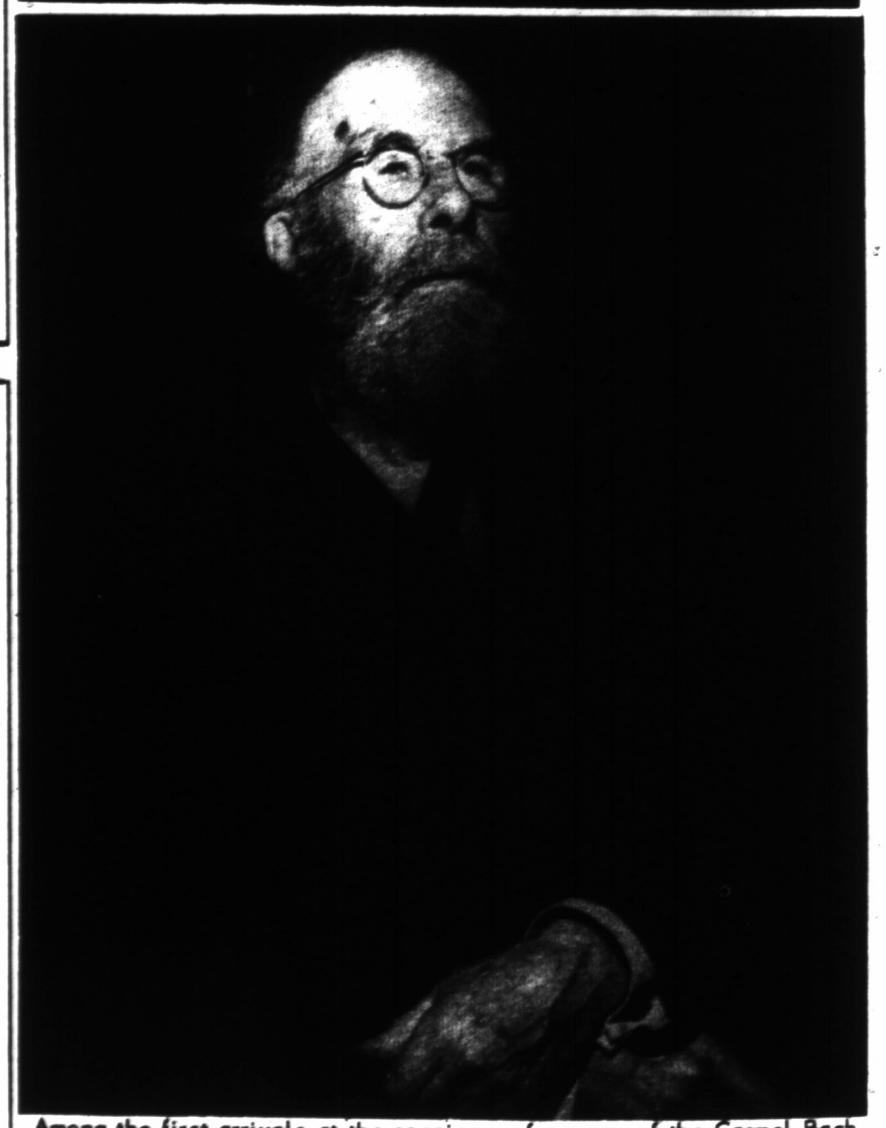
was greatly enjoyed by the audience. In the Brandenburg Concerto No. 2, F Major, our concertmaster, Ervin Mautner, did an excellent job in the good company of Ralph Watilo, oboist, Franklin Sabin, clarinetist, and Floyd Stancliff, the flutist.

Stanley Plummer in the Concerto A minor for Violin and Orchestra deserves credit for a wonderful rendition of the violin part. The beauty of his tone came out especially in the touching second movement, Adagio ma non tanto. And last but not least, Samuel Singer and Albert White gave a superb performance of the Brandenburg Concerto No. 6, B flat Major for two Violas. The viola, mistakenly considered the stepchild of the orchestra, has a depth and strength of tone quality which makes it most appealing to the sensitive ear. Our two soloists, with the fine help of the three cellists, Marian Davies, Jean McGuire and Jean Crouch Fulkerson, with Alice Lunden playing the contrabass and Charles Fulkerson the piano obligato, gave a well rounded performance eliciting a tremendous response from the listeners. Maxim Shapiro thrilled the audience in the Carmel Woman's Club Monday morning with his masterly rendition of some preludes and fugues from the Well Tempered Clavier. Tuesday morning found many attending the Woman's Club when Alfred Frankenstein gave an exceedingly interesting lecture on the Well Tempered Clavier with some illustrations on the piano at the end by Maxim Shapiro. In the afternoon All Saints' Church was packed by an audience which enjoyed the competent organ playing of Ludwig Altmann.

Tuesday evening was another memorable performance: first the Brandenburg Concerto No. 1 F Major arranged for Violin, three Oboes, two Horns and Strings. Noel Sullivan contributed three songs from the Geistliche Lieder and the St. Matthew Passion, which he enhanced with all the rich sonority of his deep bass, and interpreted with expressive beauty and power.

The audience gave a real ovation to Marian Davies for a beautiful performance of Haydn's Concerto, D Major, for Cello and Orchestra. Her tone is strong and clear combined with an excellent technic. High praise should be given to Ervin Mautner, who played the Violin Solo of the Concerto, E Major with the Orchestra. However, the piece of resistance of the evening was the thrilling and brilliant piano playing of Maxim Shapiro's of Beethoven's Concerto No. 1 in C Major, which brought the house down. I wish I could go into detail but can only express the feelings of the audience, whose reactions testified to its magnificence. But the SPECTATOR has a deadline, and I can only say that I am looking forward to hearing the rest of the concerts this year, and many more of their like in the years to come.



Among the first arrivals at the opening performance of the Carmel Bach Festival were the above groups who paused before the Sunset Auditorium to listen to the Heralding Trombones on Sunday evening. Your CONGRESSMAN REPORTS

By Ernest K. Bramblett

The House of Representatives has wisely enacted legislation to strengthen our national security and I hope the senate will take action as quickly as possible.

The measure to which I refer is HR 7439, which provides that the heads of government departments or agencies may suspend or terminate the employment of civilian officers and employes when they are adjudged poor security risks.

This bill is strongly backed by Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson who recognizes that it is useless to send men abroad to fight communism only to have their efforts nullified by poor security risks in the government at home.

A poor security risk is not necessarily a disloyal person. He simply may be a person who does not know enough to keep his mouth shut about the confidential work he may be doing in connection with our national defense effort. He may be the type whose tongue is too loose and talks too much at Washington parties.

Most of us, I am sure, remember the posters of the last war of: "Loose lips sink ships."

It makes no difference, in the final result, whether secrets are revealed deliberately or unintentionally. Lives are lost in either event. There is no place in our government during this time of national emergency for the irresponsible, not to mention the disloyal.

Some opponents of the measure have attempted to raise the argument it would violate employes' rights. This is a straw man. The employe has the right to see a written statement of the charges, an opportunity to answer the charges, a hearing, a review of his case and a written statement of the final decision.

756 LOCAL SCOUTS ATTEND SUMMER CAMPING ACTIVITIES

It was announced today by Harold Holgerson, chairman of the Monterey bay area Boy Scout council's camping and activities committee, that 697 scouts and 59 volunteer adult leaders have had a long-term camp experience of a week or more so far this summer, breaking all previous records. At council-operated Camp Esselen in Big Sur State Park, there were 549 scouts and leaders in attendance; 59 attended the National Jamboree at Valley Forge, Pa.; 19 made a cruise to the Hawaiian Islands as guests of the Navy, and 129 took part in troop-operated camps.

Scouting policies provide that all troops shall be under their own adult volunteer leadership, with a minimum of guidance and training from a central staff of experts provided by the council. R. G. Macdonald was camp director, W. J. Abbey, commissary officer, and R. Olenberger, activities and waterfront director. Drs. Harry Lusignan, Monterey, and James R. Fassett, Gonzales, served as medical officers, assisted by William Tetrick, Spreckels, first aid director. William J. Mohwinkle, of Seaside, did the cooking, helped by Floyd Gardner, Monterey. Rev. F. J. Franchi, S. J., of San Jose, was camp chaplain, Dewey Chambers, Capitola, as naturalist, and Richard N. Ross, of Hollister, as scout director.

Other staff members were Richard Walls and Gene Rumrill, of Pacific Grove; Charles Easton and John Crossman, Monterey; Alan C. Reyburn, Carmel:

Commander McCree will report at the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk for a period of four months under instruction. During this time, his family will remain at their Carmel home on San Mateo Avenue.

An instructor in engineering at the Naval School, Commander Mc Crea is a submarine officer. A graduate of the Naval Academy class of 1932, where he played football for four years and was on the crew, he commanded a submarine in the last war. A veteran of six war patrols from Perth, Australia, snd Pearl Harbor bases, Commander McCrea wears the Navy Cross, Silver Star with Gold Star, Bronze Star and Commendation Ribbon.

Mrs. McCrea and their two children, Barbara Ann and Bruce, will stay in Carmel until Cmdr. McCrea finishes his studies at the Armed Forces Staff College.

SEA DUTY FOR NAVY LINE SCHOOL OFFICER

Commander Philip W. Mothersill, USN, staff officer at the Naval School, Monterey, will be detached on July 21, under orders to sea duty, Captain T. J. Casey, USN, the school's commanding officer, announced this week.

Commander Mothersill, ordered to Monterey in 1947, had been an instructor in the Ordnance and Gunnery Department and was head of that department for the past year. His new orders will take him to the USS Fort Marion, LSD 22 (Landing Ship Dock), as commanding officer. Before reporting on board, he will go to the Pacific Fleet Amphibious Training Command for a short tour of temporary duty.

A graduate of the class of '31 at the Naval Academy, Annapolis, Commander Mothersill was commanding officer of the USS Stribling (DD867) after the war. Prior to that, he served as executive officer on the cruiser, USS Wilkes-Barre, during naval actions off Iwo Jima, Okinawa and Japan. As gunnery officer on the USS Tuscaloosa in 1943-44, Commander Mothersill joined the British Fleet at Scapa Flow, sailed to Murmansk and saw action off Casablanca.

Commander Mothersill wears the Bronze Star, Commendation Ribbon, Occupation, China Service, Victory, Philippine Liberation, and three area defense ribbons.

Mrs. Mothersill and their daughter, Ann, will make their home in Coronado, California. Mrs. Mothersill is the daughter of Rear Admiral John Downes, USN (Ret).

LINE SCHOOL OFFICER RECEIVES CAPTAINCY

Commander K. R. Wheland, USN, head of the Navigation and Seamanship Department at the Naval School, Monterey, was sworn in with the rank of captain Monday by Captain A. R. St. Angelo, USN, executive officer.

Captain Wheland, a submarine officer, successfully completed his professional examinations after being chosen for promotion recently by a Navy Department selection board.

Head of the Seamanship and Navigation Department at the Monterey Naval School since the start of this year's school term in February, he has been a member of the staff since reporting at Monterey in January, 1947.

Previous naval duty as commanding officer of Submarine Division 51 climaxed Captain Wheland's long service in submarines. He commanded two subs during the war on six war patrols, served in staff assignments and as a member of the Squalus Salvage Unit in 1939.

He lives, with Mrs. Wheland and their three children, in quarters on the school grounds.

Purpose of the course is to provide selected specialists with intelligence methods currently employed by the Army during battle operations.

STAMP CLUB MEETS AUGUST 7

The next meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Stamp Club will feature an auction at 8 p.m. on Monday, August 7, in Sunset School. Members were reminded in this week's meeting that Kodachrome pictures will be shown by Uncle Harry Wise at the Leamington Hotel, Oakland, on August 4 and that a statewide picnic is scheduled for August 13 in Oakland's Lakeside Park.

During the meeting on Monday, at which President Colonel John R. Wright presided, it was decided by the Stamp Club to donate $25 to UNESCO toward financing a foreign student at Monterey Peninsula College.

Six Encores For Chiesa

By Roslyn M. Hall

Last Thursday evening, at the Pacific Grove High School Auditorium, the Monterey Peninsula Concert Association presented Miss Vivian Della Chiesa in a highly successful recital as a benefit for the grand piano fund.

As generous and as charming an artist as has been heard in a long time, Miss Della Chiesa, handsomely gowned, sang a long and diversified program, and responded to audience enthusiasm with a total of six encores.

This reviewer cared least for the operatic selections, an opinion which, however, was not shared by the rest of the audience. Miss Della Chiesa's rich mezzo impressed me especially in "She Never Told Her Love" by Haydn, "L'Incontro" from "I Conti della Sera" by Santoliquido, the charming "Caro, caro el mio bambin" by Guarnieri and "Psyche" by Paladilhe. In addition to technical skill, Miss Della Chiesa projected warmth and emotion as well as dramatic fire in such selections as the aria from "Le Cid" by Massenet--"Pleurez mes yeux."

Among her encores were the familiar "Drink to me only with thine Eyes," the haunting "Think on me," by Lady Alicia Ann Scott, "Little Boy Blue," and --sung directly to delighted children in the audience, "M. Banjo."

Edwin McDonnell accompanied with skill and understanding, and after the intermission, appeared as soloist at the piano to play three numbers by de Falla, "Dance of the Miller" and "Pantomime" from "The Three Cornered Hat," and "Ritual Fire Dance" from "El Armor Brujo." His encore, performed with the delicacy of touch it requires, was "Clare de Lune."

Borodine's "A Dissonance," the popular favorite, "None But the Lonely Heart," Nevin's "One Spring Morning," and the dramatic "Bolero" by Sandoval were outstanding in the second group of songs. "Lullaby for a Doll" by Black and "Comin' thru' the Rye" were performed with wit and humor. The last scheduled number on this genuinely interesting program was Bizet's "Ouvre ton coeur."

The Monterey Peninsula Community Concert Association is to be congratulated on the success of this recital, both from an artistic and an entertainment standpoint, and it is gratifying to learn that the worthy cause, the purchase fund for a grand piano, is near fulfillment.

British Calm About Korea say Localites

In a letter to this publication, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cochrane, of Carmel, now traveling in Europe, report the English seem to take the current war scare "in their stride" and that Americans touring the continent don't appear to have altered their plans because of the Korean situation.

"I will say this though," writes Mr. Cochrane, "There are sure a lot of Americans over here to get home if anything happens that they have to go." He referred to the estimate that there will be a total of 3,000,000 Americans to have visited Europe by the end of the Summer.

Mr. Cochrane wrote the letter just prior to their leaving for a tour of the Scandinavian countries. They have completed their travels in Scotland and were delighted particularly with the city of Edinburgh, where Mr. Cochrane wrote for the Edinburgh Evening News an article on his impressions of the city.

The couple spent the Fourth of July at a garden party for Americans hosted by Ambassador and Mrs. Douglas in London. Among the guests were Mrs. Vera Shepherd and daughter, Jerry, of Pebble Beach, the letter stated.

The Cochranes also attended the tennis championships at Wimbledon and had dinner at the House of Commons as guests of the Honorable Ian Orr Edwin, member of the House.

Recalling their travels to date, the Cochranes thought the people of Scotland the most hospitable in the British Isles. The couple had planned to sail this week for Bergen, Norway, to start their trek through Scandinavia.

ORIGINAL MUSIC IN "GLASS MANAGERIE"

"The Glass Menagerie," opening next Friday night, July 28, will present to local listeners the music used in the original New York production. Composed for the play by Paul Bowles and deftly cued to form a background for the action, it was recently recorded and made available to the many groups around the country that are planning to produce this engrossing play.

Cooperating indispensably with the actors, who were named last week, is the following backstage staff - James McNeil, Julie McCarthy, Katherine Bolton, Thomas Elliott, Emma Evans, Constance Bestor, John Chitwood, John Chitwood, John Powers, Bob Paradise, Susan Moore and Marcia Kuster.

Edward Kuster is directing the production. The play will be produced for the benefit of the scenery and lighting equipment fund of Carmel Playhouse, soon to be built on the site of the Golden Bough, destroyed by fire last year. Kuster announces what may well be a major step forward in the presentation of plays in Sunset Auditorium, namely, a series of screens 14 feet high directly across the auditorium and just behind the twelfth row. Seats will not be sold for locations behind this line. This reduces the capacity of the auditorium to 260 and is expected to create both visually and acoustically the atmosphere of an intimate theatre.

At the time of the New York production, which earned for "The Glass Menagerie" the award of the New York Drama Critics' Circle for the best play of the year, the newspaper and magazine press was full of praise for Tennessee Williams' remarkable play. It was universally hailed as a play of imagination and extraordinary beauty, as something to see, to cheer about, and to see again. Telling the story of four ordinary people, it is, as the N.Y. Post said, "Very, very funny, yet desperately sad," in its presentation of the complicated business of living. The Mirror said, "It is sheer magic--it restores faith in and lends distinction to the theatre."

"The Glass Menagerie" will open next Friday and will play that evening and the next. It will be repeated August 4 and 5. Tickets are now on sale in Golden Bough Court, on Ocean Avenue opposite Pine Inn.

CHURCH AUXILIARY PREPARES FOR ST. JAMES DAY DINNER

The regular meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of St. James' Episcopal Church, Monterey, took place in the parish hall on Wednesday evening, July 12.

The ladies agreed to cooperate with the Vestry in giving a Parish dinner on Tuesday evening, July 25, in celebration of St. James' Day. There will be a celebration of Holy Communion at 10 a.m. also for this Saint's day and the members of the parish are invited to bring friends to the dinner. Tickets will be on sale by members of the Auxiliary and are available now. Early purchases are requested so that those preparing the dinner will know an approximate number for whom to prepare.

Following the business meeting the hostesses of the evening, Mrs. Howard Brown and Mrs. F. P. Spratt, served a dessert course.

JOB RETENTION RIGHTS IN EFFECT FOR SERVICEMEN, VETS REMINDED

Assurance of job retention rights, similar to that which was in effect during World War II, is provided for armed forces reservists who volunteer for active duty as well as for draftees under existing federal statutes, it was pointed out this week by Congressman Richard M. Nixon, who said he has received a number of written and long distance telephone inquiries from California on the subject since the outbreak of hostilities in Korea.

"From the veterans viewpoint, the present law is even more advantageous than that which applied during the last war," Nixon declared, "because it fixes responbility upon the employer to find a position for a man who returns from service with a disability, which was not previously the case."

One of the inquiries received by Congressman Nixon came from an entire unit of naval air reservists attached to the Los Alamitos Naval Air Station who were planning to volunteer for active duty.

"Job protection is provided for a period of one enlistment, or until the serviceman is able to obtain his release from active duty," Nixon said.

A considerable number of men who were in service during the last war and who are contemplating reenlistment also have written to Congressman Nixon expressing concern over the discontinuance of dependency benefits, he said.

ANSWER TO THIS WEEK'S

WHO IS IT?

The Reverend Father Michael D. O'Connell, pastor of the Carmel Mission, is featured in this week's "Who Is It?" A native of Ireland, Father O'Connell hails from Cahirciveen, County Kerry, which was also the birthplace of a famous relative of his, Daniel O'Connell, the liberator, who in 1829 became the first Catholic member of the British Parliament. Born in 1899, Father O'Connell took his philosophical and theological courses at the major seminary of St. Patrick's, Thurles, Tipperary County, and was ordained a priest in 1922. California, the land of sunshine, fresh air and fresh fruit, beckoned him to this part of the world shortly afterwards, and he accepted his first position as an assistant in Bakersfield. Before coming to Carmel, he worked in Watsonville, Fresno, Hollister and Lemoore, where he was made head of the parish. When he arrived in Carmel in 1933, Father O'Connell became the first pastor of the local parish, as Carmel Catholics were attending church in Monterey prior to that time. With his coming, the restoration work on Carmel Mission got underway and he helped organize the pageant in 1934 which commemorated the death of Father Junipero Serra. His life in Carmel has been coincidental with important improvements of the Carmel Mission, with the exhuming of the body of Father Serra as a first step toward Canonization, and with the growth of his parish from about 50 families to more than 350 families.

Successful South Pacific Night Held

The weekend ad Pebble Beach was highlighted by the "South Pacific Nite" costume party at the Beach Club Saturday night. The affair was a huge success and another costume dinner dance has been planned for August 5 in the same locale.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Osborne hosted a large party including Mrs. Osborne's sister, Mrs. Kenneth S. Walker, who was up from La Jolla as their house guest for the weekend; Stuyvesant Fish, Countess "Pepy" de Sugny, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Tevis, Mr. and Mrs. Colden Whitman, Captain William M. Donnelly, Jr., and Gorham B. Knowles.

At another table were Mr. and Mrs. John Boit Morse and their house guest, Miss Margaret Dale Ames, of New York; Mr. Samuel F. B. Morse and Mr. and Mrs. William L. Hudson.

Among those seen at Marianne Crocker's table were Susan Soto-Hall, of San Francisco; William Taylor, Boston; John Stokes, of Rhode Island; Walter Moulder, and Patricia Merivale, Carmel.

Others noted about the room were Mr. and Mrs. C. Taylor Pillsbury and their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Robinson Neeman, of Los Gatos.

Still others included the Maharajah, of Kutch, Miss Courtney Garland and Charles S. Garland, Jr., of Baltimore; John Davison and Gates Davison, of Locust Valley, Long Island; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Killefer, of Sausalito, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Clothier, of Valley Forge, Pa., who are currently vacationing at Del Monte Lodge.

Mr. and Mrs. Slone Allen, of Omaha, Nebr., and Mr. and Mrs. William T. Woodrow, of Cincinnati; Mrs. Alma McKeever; Peter Hately, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Buckner.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Work, Jr., had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Earl A. Matthiessen, of Pebble Beach; Mrs. Ted R. Fielding (Jacqueline Work) who is visiting here from Coronado, and Mrs. Work's brother, Mr. Charles Perkes, of Berkeley.

next time I see them. There's money in that stuff.

THE FOURTANES live in Sausalito, or a few yards away from it, to be correct. Their home is the S.S. Lassen, a 185-foot boat tied up at the wharf and slowly going to pieces in San Francisco Bay, and theirs is the only home I've ever heard of which not only has a hatch, but a hatch you can fish through. You drop a line, and pretty soon, there's supper! They have fish swimming in the cellar, and will have as long as the boat holds together. When the Lassen finally disintegrates, the Fourtanes will either drown, or, God willing, escape to dry land--and what with the Grade A type of jewelry they turn out, the world will suffer a great loss if it isn't the latter.

THE FOURTANES will be in Carmel until the middle of August, present for all to see (during the daylight hours) in the window of Parsons of Carmel. There you can watch them designing and executing some pretty fabulous stuff of precious and semi-precious stones, copper, brass, silver, gold, or whatever else they decide is needed at the moment.

THE FOURTANES met at the California School of Fine Arts in San Francisco, where they were both studying painting. The fact that Ed was employed as a metal-worker during the war, plus his early interest in rocks and minerals, somehow got the two of them started on jewelry. Loyola found herself concentrating on rocks and metals rather than on painting, with results that definitely call for a personal investigation by all of you.

MY WIFE DECIDED that she too should investigate personally all the things I had been telling her about the Fourtanes and their work, and sure enough, the other day as I passed Parsons, I spotted her and our 10-week old son inside cooing and gurgling over the things. And when the kid gets to the point that he's reading the funnies, he'll probably be glad to learn that he once met some people to whom the phrase "See you in the funnies" could really be said in truth. Because the Fourtanes once made the comic section - directly below Red Ryder - on behalf of Sperry Pancake and Waffle Flour. Until that time, I'm glad to report that the Fourtanes liked our son, and that he and my wife and I liked them and their jewelry. Anybody who doesn't has got no soul. No soul at all.

Cotton plaid costume.

By VERA WINSTON

ALL hail to mixmatch jobs such as this two-piece costume that can be nicely mixed or matched with other pieces for wardrobe variety on a budget. The fabric is red, black and blue plaid cotton. The blouse has a deep square neck with a saw-tooth edge at the base, and brief cap sleeves. It is shown with an unpressed pleated skirt with built-up waistband and back fastening. The skirt would look attractive with a black pique blouse, while the top would go nicely with a black pique, linen or cotton skirt.

Mary Rodin

MISS RODIN WED IN FLORIDA NUPTIALS

Our Lady of Loreto Chapel, Warrington, Florida, was the scene recently of the marriage of Miss Mary Rodin, formerly of Carmel, and Lieutenant Commander Thomas William Kennedy, who was among the students in the last year's class at the Navy General Line School, Monterey.

Miss Rodin is the daughter of Frank Daniel Rodin, of San Pedro.

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin made with a square neckline edged with pearl embroidery, long fitted sleeves, fitted bodice and skirt forming a long train. Her finger tip veil of illusion was held by a dutch cap, the wings embroidered with pearls. She carried a prayer book adorned with tube roses and marked with white roses.

Mrs. Victor J. Curran, sister of the groom, was matron of honor, while David D. Kennedy was his brothers's best man.

Following a honeymoon trip to New Orleans, the couple have setled at 109 S.E. Syrcle Drive, Warrington, Florida. The groom is a naval aviator stationed at Pensacola.
